FARFAX SEMINARY.—The hospital at this point is in a very good condition. The patients are quite comfortable, as much so us can be expected, when men are put into barracks suited only for horses, and nothing but sheet-iron stoves to create the heat. We wish the parties responsible for this species of accommodations for sick men were obliged to pass through a severe attack of typhoid fever, with just such surroundings as they give our soldiers.

EXPLOSION AT THE ARMONT.—On Saturday afternoon, about 2 o'clock, the entire city was startled by the most terrific concussion in the atmosphere ever heard in the city. The sound came from the Columbia armory, and as dense smoke was seen to arise from that vicinity imcame from the Columbia armory, and as dense smoke, was seen to arise from that vicinily immediately, the impression prevailed that an explosion had taken place amid the quantity of powder in that establishment. The belis were rung, fire engines rushed to the seene, and a general alarm was created. As a number of females were employed in the building, mothers and other relatives were seen rushing frantically towards the armory, wringing their hands and intering the most agonizing shricks in their horror of suspense. We were near the armory grounds at the time of the explosion and hastened to the scene, anticipating with others, to witness a scene of fearful suffering. Fortunately our anxiety was reflered by the agreeable discovery that "nobody was hurt." The explosion was ascertained to have been produced in burning some refuse material, which is usually done every Saturday. When our soldlers in the field are out on picket or other duty in damp weather, their carridges are apt to become damp and worthless; these are put in the return ammunition boxes and sent back to the arsenal, where the good powder and the ball are emptled from the papers and sent back to the arsenal, where the good powder and the ball are emptied from the papers and the papers thrown in a pile by themselves.

Last Saurday, as usual, these papers were taken out to a vacant space, and ignited by a slow match. When the mass was fairly lighted it exploded with a most terrific crash, the noise of which nearly stunned those who were in the teichity. The windows in the front of the honses along the entire length of Maine avenue, from the armory to Four-and-a-half street, were broken. In two large houses there was not a whole pane of glass left. A great number of lights were broken in the armory building, while in the Armory Square hospital the patients and others were startled by the rattling of builets on the roof of their building. Several Minie balls were picked up in Maryland avenue, and other streets in the vicinity. It is supposed that a large number of the damaged carridges must have been emptied into the trash pile by accident, without being opened.
Messures will be taken to guard aiguinst a simlar accident. In future. We are activited that der and the ball are emptied from the papers an sures will be taken to guard against a sim-accident in future. We are satisfied that lar accident in future. LADIES CAN GO SOUTH .- The following order, Labile cas on SOTH.—The following order, issued on Saturday, will interest many of those who call themselves ladies. We wish all who sympathize with the rebellion would avail themselves of this opportunity to go among "their friends in the South." Our Local has a screeching secessionist, who continually polyons the air with vile rebel songs, the very uest door to his residence. Though of "Yankee" extraction, her "sympathies are with the South." Wonder if she'll go?

FILL FROM A CAR.—On Saturday last, a lady in attempting to get off one of the Seventh street cars when near the Avenne, was thrown from the step by the sudden starting of the horace, and dragged for some distance. At first it was feared that she was seriously injured. She was taken into the drug store on the corner of Louisiana avenue and Seventh street, in a fainting condition. Restoratives were applied and she recovered. Fortunately she was not seriously injured. Great care should be exercised by drivers and conductors while passengers, and particularly ladies, are slighting from the care.

Thousands of camps dot the hillsides, which are whitened by whole villages of them as far as the eye can extend. Frowning fortifications crown every hill, while innumerable roads and paths cross from one to the other, intersecting at all angles. The valles are alled with sol-diers, who are strolling about for wood, water, and various other purposes. Here and there horsemen are seen galloping from camp to camp. Guards are stationed in every direction, pacing regularly to and fro, and a stranga activity, yet military precision, marks the whole. The ruin and desolation, as well as the "pomp, pride, and circumstance of glorious

He is followed by a full band of music, from which come the saddening yet thrilling and solemn tones of a dirge, whose reverberations startle many a warrior from his toil to look on the solemn procession as it passes. Following solemin procession as it passes. Following these is the ambulance with the remains, escorted by a few companions of the deceased. Another soldier has gone to rest, far from home and friends. Who is he! "Only a private!" "Henry Sleeper, company H, 13th New Hampshire, died November 15, 1862," will be the simple record on his regimental rolls, and on the rude board placed on the sacred soil where aleeps the brave, and then he will be forgotten. Fond friends in the distant home will weep for a time almost broken-hearted, and then he will be remembered only by the wife or mother, who will, in after years, tell of the loved one who lost his life in suppressing the great Southern robellion. Virginia will-indeed be "sacred soil" to many an aching heart all over our land—sacred as the resting-place of the flower of thousands of families.

MURDER IN THE CAMP OF RECRUITS.—Last Saturday night, a quarred arose between two soldiers in the camp of recruits, about two miles out of Alexandria, when one of them was killed by a knife or bayoinet in the hands of the other. The murderer was promptly arrested. His name is Hugh M. McKillips, a recruit for the 2d regiment Pennsylvania cavalry. The murdered man's name is Wm. H. Depugh, recruit for the 4bth regiment Pennsylvania volunteers. There are two charges against McKillips: 1st, assault and battery on Depugh, with his fist, near the guard tent of the camp of recruits, while in the act of stacking arms; 2d, stabbling Depugh with a bowle knife, near the tent occupied by the two, thereby causing his death. The deceased expired in about ten minutes after the fatal stab, and only had time to request that his body be sent home to his friends in Pennsylvania, which will be done to-day. The murderer will have a court martial to-day, and will doubtless be sentenced to execution. MURDER IN THE CAMP OF RECRUITS .- Last
